

Papers Presented: Fred Pine, Ph.D. (Selected List):

The role of congruence between stimulus and response in the effect of marginal stimuli. Eastern Psychological Association, Philadelphia, 1961.

Some patterns of mother-child behavior in toddlerhood. Research Career Development Award Conference, Skytop, PA., June, 1964.

Cognitive and motor functions in ego development. Columbia Psychoanalytic Institute Research Seminar, February., 1966.

Discussant: Observations on adaptation and defense in statu nascendi (by M.S. Mahler and J.B. McDevitt). New York Psychoanalytic Society, March, 1967.

Panelist: Workshop on research in psychoanalysis: Studies of the normal separation-individuation phase. American Psychoanalytic Association, New York, December, 1971.

Discussant: Libidinal object constancy: Some developmental considerations (by J.B. McDevitt). New York Psychoanalytic Society, January, 1972.

Panelist: Workshop on symbiosis in psychoanalysis. International Forum of Psychoanalysis, New York, October., 1972.

Discussant: Symposium on methodology of preventive intervention with infants and young children. American Academy of Child Psychiatry, Washington, D.C., October., 1973.

Discussant: On the role of experimental data in developing the clinical theory of psychoanalysis (by L. Silverman). New York Psychoanalytic Society, January, 1974.

Ego and drive: A schematic view. Panel paper. American Psychoanalytic Association, New York, December, 1974.

Discussant: The interpretation of the past: Childhood trauma, psychic reality, and historical truth (by J. Schimek). Institute for Psychoanalytic Training and Research, New York, January, 1975.

Panelist: Developmental aspects of perception and cognition. American Psychoanalytic Association, New York, December, 1975 and December, 1976.

Panelist: Longitudinal studies. American Academy of Psychoanalysis, New York, December, 1975.

Discussant: Conference on communicative structures and psychic structures. Downstate Medical Center, New York, January, 1976.

Developmental crises in the family: Individuation throughout the life cycle. Panel paper. American Academy of Psychoanalysis, Atlanta, Ga., December, 1976.

On therapeutic change: Perspectives from a parent-child model. Grand Rounds Lecture. Cornell University Medical Center, January, 1977. (Also presented at Downstate Medical Center, March, 1977.)

Meet-the-author panel: The Psychological Birth of the Human Infant (M.S. Mahler, F. Pine, & A. Bergman). American Psychoanalytic Association, Quebec, Canada, April, 1977.

On the expansion of the affect array: A developmental description. Invited participant in Conference on Early Development of Affects and Moods, First Annual Spencer Foundation Conference at The Menninger Foundation, October 14-16, 1977.

Panelist: Workshop on affect theory. American Psychoanalytic Association, New York, December, 1977.

On the pathology of the separation-individuation process as manifested in later clinical work: An attempt at delineation. Honorary Esther Schour Zetland Lecture for the Association of Child Psychotherapists, Chicago, March, 1978. (Also presented at New York University Postdoctoral Program, Brookdale Hospital, and Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons.)

Discussant: On the intrapsychic function of falling in love (by M. Bergmann). New York University Postdoctoral Program, April, 1978.

The place of object loss in normal development. Panel paper. American Psychoanalytic Association, Symposium for Mental Health Professionals, New York, November, 1978.

Panelist: Theory and practice in the treatment of children. American Orthopsychiatric Association, Washington, D.C., April, 1979.

Borderline children: Developmental, diagnostic, and therapeutic issues. Conference on the borderline child, Tufts University Medical School Boston, November, 1979.

In the beginning: Contributions to a psychoanalytic developmental psychology. First World Congress of Infant Psychiatry, Cascais, Portugal, April, 1980. (Also presented at New York Psychoanalytic Society, May, 1980; New York University Postdoctoral Program, November, 1980; Cornell University Medical School, January, 1981.)

The experience of self: Aspects of its formation, expansion, and vulnerability. Division of Psychoanalysis, American Psychological Association, Ixtapa, Mexico, March, 1981. (Also presented at Downstate Medical Center, April, 1981; Hahneman Medical College, Philadelphia, October, 1981; William Alanson White Society, New York October, 1981; New York Psychoanalytic Society, December, 1981.)

Discussant: On instincts and instinctual drives: Some developmental considerations (by D. Freedman.), American Psychoanalytic Association, San Juan, Puerto Rico, May, 1981.

The interpretive moment: Variations on classical themes. Cornell University Medical School, Westchester Division, November, 1982. (Also presented at New York University Postdoctoral Program, December, 1983.)

The impact of early developmental research on psychoanalytic practice and theory. Panel paper. Division of Psychoanalysis, American Psychological Association, Puerto Rico, March, 1983.

The psychologies of drive, ego, object relations, and self: An integration at the level of the developing individual. Honorary Tomlinson Lecture, Departments of Psychology, New York University, Spring, 1983. (Also presented at New York Freudian Society, November, 1983; Westchester Psychoanalytic Society, January, 1984; University of Texas Health Sciences Center at Dallas, Distinguished Psychoanalyst Series, February, 1985.)

The mutative factors and the conceptual languages of psychoanalysis: An expanded view. Canadian Association of Psychoanalytic Psychotherapists for Children, Toronto, Canada, May, 1984. (Also presented at New York Freudian Society, January, 1985; Dallas Psychoanalytic Institute, February, 1985.)

Discussant: Panel on the borderline and severely neurotic child, American Psychoanalytic Association, New York, December, 1984.

Workshop leader; Developmental theory and the clinical process. Division of Psychoanalysis, American Psychological Association, Phoenix, February, 1985 and San Francisco, May, 1986.

Continuity and change in psychoanalytic thought (7 lectures). Visiting Psychoanalyst Lecture Series, Postgraduate Center for Mental Health, New York, 1985-1986.

The four psychologies of psychoanalysis and the concept "preoedipal pathology." Behavioral Science Institute, Miami, November, 1985.

The four psychologies of psychoanalysis and the nature of the therapeutic impact. Behavioral Science Institute, Miami, November, 1985. (Also presented at Philadelphia Society for Psychoanalytic Psychology, January, 1986; Denver Society for Psychoanalytic Psychology, April, 1986.)

The "symbiotic phase" in the light of current infancy research. Panel paper. Memorial meeting for Margaret S. Mahler, New York Psychoanalytic Society, February, 1986.

The four psychologies of psychoanalysis and their place in clinical work. And: Motivation, personality organization, and the four psychologies of psychoanalysis (2 lectures) Chicago Association for Psychoanalytic Psychology, Chicago, November, 1986.

What makes psychotherapy work? Panel paper. American Psychoanalytic Association Workshop for Mental Health Professionals, New York, November 22-23, 1986.

The four psychologies of psychoanalysis and their place in clinical work. Philadelphia Psychoanalytic Society, January, 1987. (Also presented at Albert Einstein College of Medicine, New York, February, 1987; Washington Society for Psychoanalytic Psychology, March, 1987.)

Chair, and Introduction to symposium: Drive and Object Relations in Psychoanalytic Theory and Technique. Sponsored by Albert Einstein College of Medicine at New York Academy of Medicine, New York, January, 1987.

On the history and current critique of the separation-individuation concept. California School of Professional Psychology, San Francisco, May, 1987. (Also presented at Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons, March, 1988; Mt. Sinai School of Medicine Child Psychiatry Grand Rounds, October, 1988.)

Implications of infancy research for adult treatment: The Rashomon phenomenon. Panel paper. Symposium on the World of Self and Other: The Impact of New Infant Research on the Treatment of Adults, Los Angeles, October 17-18, 1987.

Developmental considerations in psychoanalytic psychotherapy (three sessions). Continuing education series of the New York Psychoanalytic Institute, January, 1988 and January, 1989 .

Motivation, personality organization, and the four psychologies of psychoanalysis. Westchester Psychoanalytic Society, May, 1988 (Also presented at Psychoanalytic Institute of New England, Cambridge, MA., October, 1988.)

Drive, ego, object, and self: A synthesis for clinical work (full day or two-day workshop series). University of Jyväskylä Department of Psychology, Jyväskylä, Finland, May, 1988. (Also presented at University of Turku Department of Psychiatry, Turku, Finland, May, 1988; Finnish Psychoanalytic Society, Helsinki, Finland, May, 1988; Therapeia Foundation, Helsinki, Finland, May, 1988; Connecticut Association for Psychoanalytic Psychology, New Haven, October, 1988; Massachusetts Association for Psychoanalytic Psychology, Boston, October, 1988; Stanford University Department of Psychiatry Clinical Faculty Association, Palo Alto, Ca., November, 1988; Brigham Young University Conference on Counseling and Development, Provo, Utah, February, 1989; Colorado Association for Psychoanalytic Psychology, Denver, February, 1989; New Jersey Psychological Association, Newark, April, 1989; Society for Transactional Analysis, Pennsylvania, April, 1989; Cincinnati Association for Psychoanalytic Psychology, October, 1989; Children's Medical Center of Tulsa, Ok., November, 1989; Canadian Psychoanalytic Association, Montreal, March, 1990; Institute for Advanced Psychological Studies of Adelphi University, November, 1990; Northwest Alliance for Psychoanalytic Study and Seattle Psychoanalytic Institute, Seattle, January, 1991; Appalachian Psychoanalytic Society, Knoxville, Tn., October, 1991; Michigan Society for Psychoanalytic Psychology, Ann Arbor/Detroit, November, 1991.)

Where is psychoanalytic clinical theory heading?: From ideology to intrapsychic reality. Opening night address to Convention of Academy of Psychoanalysis, New York, January, 1989.

Three decades of psychoanalysis: The second decade: The Mahler era. Panel paper. New York Freudian Society, November, 1989.

Chair and Discussant: Panel on The Development of the Analytic Relationship over Time, Division of Psychoanalysis, American Psychological Association, New York, April, 1990.

Developmental aspects of the borderline syndrome. Panel paper. American Psychiatric Association, New York, May, 1990.

Some built-in tensions in the psychoanalyst's life. Graduation address for the Training Institute of the Postgraduate Center for Mental Health, New York, June, 1990.

The Mahler era in psychoanalysis. Northwest Alliance for Psychoanalytic Studies, Seattle, October, 1990. (Also presented at Michigan Society for Psychoanalytic Psychology, Ann Arbor/Detroit, November, 1991.)

Developmental perspectives in adult psychoanalytic practice. Panel paper. William Alanson White Institute, New York, November, 1990.

Drive, ego, object, and self: Opportunities and dangers in the clinical use of multiple models. Response to discussants. New York University Postdoctoral Program, New York, March, 1991.

Discussant: The current status of psychoanalysis (by O. Kernberg). American Psychoanalytic Association, New Orleans, May, 1991.

On psychic change: From technique to theory. Panel discussion paper. International Psychoanalytic Association, Buenos Aires, Argentina, July, 1991.

The four psychologies of psychoanalysis and the adolescent developmental process. Plenary address. European Symposium on Adolescence, Athens, Greece, October, 1991.

Meet-the-Author Panel. Drive, Ego, Object, and Self: A Synthesis for Clinical Work. Toronto Psychoanalytic Institute, Toronto, Canada, December, 1991.

Five introductions to four psychologies: On the differentiation and integration of psychoanalytic theory. University of California San Francisco Clinical Faculty Conference, San Francisco, October, 1992. (Also presented at Stockholm, Sweden as Open Lecture to Mental Health Professionals, October, 1992; New York Freudian Society, Washington, D.C. Section, November, 1992 and New York Section, March, 1993; Topeka Psychoanalytic Society, March, 1993; California School of Professional Psychology, Oakland, Ca., June, 1993; Plenary Address, Japanese Psychoanalytic Association, Tokyo, October, 1993; Houston-Galveston Psychoanalytic Society, March 1994; Anna Freud Centre, London, March, 1994; New Jersey Academy of Psychology, April, 1994; Dallas Psychoanalytic Society, June, 1994; New Mexico Psychoanalytic Society, Albuquerque, September, 1994; North Carolina Psychological Foundation, Durham, N.C., October, 1994.)

Conflict, defect, and deficit, University of California San Francisco Clinical Faculty Conference, San Francisco, October, 1992. (Also presented at Dutch Association for Child and Adolescent Psychotherapy, Amsterdam, July, 1993.)

Considerations regarding borderline conditions in childhood. Postgraduate Educational Unit and Institute for Training in Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, Stockholm, Sweden, October, 1992.

The concept of separation-individuation: Critiqued, defended, revised. Swedish Psychoanalytic Association, Stockholm, Sweden, October 1992. (Also presented at Erica Foundation and at Association of Child and Adolescent Psychotherapists, Stockholm, Sweden, October, 1992.)

Introductory and theoretical issues in a "four psychologies" view of psychoanalysis. University of Stockholm, Stockholm, Sweden, October, 1992. (Also presented at Basic Training Unit of Psychotherapy, Stockholm, October, 1992.)

Recent controversies in the theory of separation-individuation. Japanese Psychoanalytic Association, Tokyo, October, 1993. (Also presented at Hiroshima University Department of Psychology, Hiroshima, Japan, October, 1993.)

Issues of technique in adult psychoanalysis and psychotherapy. Hiroshima Psychoanalytic Seminar, October, 1993.

Early developmental pathology as seen in adult psychoanalysis. Kyoto University Department of Psychology, Kyoto, Japan, October, 1993.

A clinician's view of development. Japanese Psychoanalytic Association, Tokyo, October, 1993.

Discussant: Three British analysts in session. New York University Postdoctoral Program. December, 1993.

Discussant: Change in child psychoanalysis. Teacher's College of Columbia University, New York, January, 1994.

Discussant: Psychotherapy research and its implications for a theory of therapeutic change (by R. Wallerstein). New York Psychoanalytic Society, October, 1994.

On the origin and evolution of a species of hate. Panel paper. Twenty-fifth Margaret S. Mahler Symposium, Philadelphia, April, 1994.

One psychoanalysis composed of many. Invited Psychoanalytic "Forum" Speaker, American Psychoanalytic Association, New York, December, 1994. (Also given at Toronto Institute for Contemporary Psychoanalysis, March, 1995.)

The "pure gold" metaphor for psychoanalysis: Is it pure or is it gold? Toronto Institute for Contemporary Psychoanalysis. Toronto, Canada, March, 1995.

Considerations regarding orthodoxy and variation in technique. The Society for the Institute of Child, Adolescent, and Family Studies, New York, May, 1995.

Critical perspectives on separation-individuation theory. New Hope Graduate Society, New York, February, 1996.

Some thoughts on the therapeutic actions of psychoanalysis. Panel paper. Division of Psychoanalysis, American Psychological Association, New York, April, 1996. (Also presented at New York Freudian Society, December, 1996.)

Meet-the-author panel. Drive, Ego, Object, and Self: A Synthesis for Clinical Work. American Psychoanalytic Association, Los Angeles, May, 1996

The "ego" in the session. Panel paper. Panel on Contemporary Freudian Psychoanalysis, New York University, November, 1996. (Also presented at Adelphi University Postdoctoral Program in Child Psychotherapy, May, 1997 and at Postgraduate Center for Mental Health, New York City, April, 1998).

Diversity in technique: Six discussions of the backdrop. Distinguished Scientific Contribution Award Lecture, Division of Psychoanalysis, American Psychological Association, Denver, March, 1997.

Chair and Introduction to Panel: Countertransference, Self-Examination and Interpretation. American Psychoanalytic Association, New York, December, 1997

Panelist: Psychoanalytic training: Then and now. Division of Psychoanalysis, American Psychological Assoc., New York, April, 1999.

Discussant: Panel on psychoanalysis at different ages. Division of Psychoanalysis, American Psychological Assoc., New York, April, 1999.

Listening and speaking psychoanalytically -- with what in mind? Honorary Heinz Hartmann Lecture, New York Psychoanalytic Institute, New York, Nov.2000.

A clinician's intellectual stance for an era of psychoanalytic diversity. National Psychological Assoc. for Psychoanalysis. New York, Jan. 2003

Mahler's concepts of symbiosis and separation-individuation: narrowing and expanding their reach. American Psychoanalytic Assoc., New York, Jan., 2003.

The place of Mahler's developmental theories in a world of object relations, attachment, and clinical work. Conference on separation-individuation and attachment. Padua, Italy. May 2003.

The child, the caretaker, and the actual body. Honorary Maurice Friend Lecture, Psychoanalytic Association of New York, New York, Oct., 2003.

Psychoanalytic seminar on the work of Fred Pine. American Psychoanalytic Association, New York, Jan. 2004.

Differentiation, object relation, and the microprocesses of identification in the mother-infant bodily relationship. Conference on the body in psychoanalytic theory. Delphi, Greece, October, 2004.

Putting it together: Integrating theory and technique in psychoanalytic practice. Columbia Psychoanalytic Center conference, Arden House, New York, December 2004.

If I knew then what I know now: Reflections on psychoanalytic experience: Theme and variations. Symposium at Division of Psychoanalysis, American Psychological Association, New York, April, 2005.

Psychotherapy today. New York School for Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy. March, 2006.

Psychoanalysis in the United States: Multiple Models and their Advantages and Problems. Mumbai, India. January, 2007.

The workings of mind. Boston Psychoanalytic Society and Institute. March 2007. (Also at: Graduate Program in Clinical Psychology, The City University of New York, October, 2007; Long Island Psychoanalytic Society, October, 2007. Chicago Psychoanalytic Institute, March, 2008. New York Freudian Society, April, 2008. Columbia Psychoanalytic Institute, March 2009. Wisconsin Psychoanalytic Society and Institute at Milwaukee, April, 2010.)

The place of theory in the mind of the therapist at work. Department of Psychiatry, Northwestern Medical school, March, 2008.

Plenary address. Conference on Our Practices Today. New York City. March, 2011.

The dream in psychoanalysis. Plenary panel presenter. International Psychoanalytic Association. Mexico City, August 2011.

The spectrum of contemporary Freudian psychoanalysis and the source of its unity. Conference on Controversial Issues. Institute of Psychoanalytic Training and Research, New York City, September, 2011.

What has been added to and taken away from drive theory? Panelist (with Martin Bergman and Martin Silverman). New Jersey Psychoanalytic Society. Hackensack, NJ, April 18, 2013.