

ILLNESS IN THE ANALYST REFERENCES

- ABEND, S. (1982). Serious illness in the analyst: Countertransference considerations. Journal of the American Psychoanalytic Association, 30:365-379.
- ABEND, S. (1986). Countertransference, empathy, and the analytic ideal: the impact of life stresses on analytic capability. PsaQ, 55, 536-575.
- ARLOW, J. (1992). The analytic attitude in the service of denial. In Illness in the Analyst. ed. H. J. & A.-L. Silver. Madison, CT: Int. University Press, 1992, pp.9-26.
- BEMESDERFER, S., (2000). Countertransference enactments informed by cancer in the analyst's child. JAPA, 48:1521-1539.
- BURTON, A. (1962). Death as a countertransference. Psychoanal. Rev., 49:3-20.
- CLARK, R. (1995). The Pope's confessor: A metaphor relating to illness in the analyst. Journal of the American Psychoanalytic Association., 43:137-149.
- CHERMIN, P. (1976). Illness in therapist loss of omnipotence. Archives of General Psychiatry, 33:1327-1328.
- CHUSED, J.F. (1997). The patient's perception of the analyst's self-disclosure: commentary on Amy Lichtblau Morrison's paper. Psychoanalytic Dialogues, 7:243-256.
- CLARK, R.W. (1995). The pope's confessor: A metaphor relating to illness in the analyst. Journal of the American Psychoanalytic Association, 43:137-149.
- DAHLBERG, C. (1980). Perspectives on death, dying, and illness while working with patients. Journal of the American Academy of Psychoanalysis, 8:369-380.
- DEWALD, P.A. (1982). Serious illness in the analyst: Transference, countertransference, and reality responses. Journal of American Psychoanalytic Association, 30:347-363.
- DURBAN, J., LAZAR, R., OFER, G. (1993). The cracked container, the containing crack: Its effect on the therapist and the therapeutic process. International Journal of Psychoanalytic Association, 74:705-713.
- FAJARDO, B. (2001). Life-threatening illness in the analyst. Journal of the American Psychoanalytic Association, 49:569-586.
- FEINSILVER, D.B. (1998). The therapist as a person facing death: The hardest of external realities and therapeutic action. International Journal of Psychoanalysis, 79:1131-1150.

- FIRESTEIN, S. (1992). Death of the analyst: termination, interruption, what?. In Illness of the Analyst: Implications for the Treatment Relationship, ed. By H. Schwartz & A.L. Silver. Madison, CT: International Univ Press. Pp. 333-340.
- FIELDSTEEL, N.D. (1989). Analysts' expressed attitudes toward dealing with death and illness. Contemporary Psychoanalysis, 25:427-43.
- FRIEDMAN, G. (1991). Impact of a therapist's life threatening illness on the therapeutic situation. Contemporary Psychoanalysis, 27:405-421.
- GALATZER-LEVY, R.. (2004). The Death of the Analyst: Patients whose first analyst died while they were in treatment. JAPA, 52:999-1024.
- HALPERT, E. (1982). When the analyst is chronically ill or dying. Psychoanalytic Quarterly, 51:372-389.
- HOFFMAN, I, (2000). At death's door: Therapists and patients as agents. Psychoanal. Dial., 10: 823-846.
- KAHN, N.E. (2003). Self-disclosure of serious illness: The impact of boundary disruptions for patient and analyst. Contemporary Psychoanalysis, 39:51-74.
- LASKEY, R. (1990). Catastrophic illness in the analyst and the analyst's emotional reactions to it. International Journal of Psychoanalysis, 71:455-473.
- LASKEY, R. (1992). Some superego conflicts in the analyst who has suffered a catastrophic illness. Int. J. Psychoanal., 73:127-136.
- LINDNER, H. (1984). Therapist and patient reactions to life-threatening crises in the therapist's life. Psychotherapy in Private Practice, 2 (4): 73-78.
- LITTLE, R.B. (1967). Transference, countertransference and survival reactions following an analyst's heart attack. Psychoanalytic Forum, 2:107-126.
- LORD, R., RITVO, S. & SOLNIT, A. (1978). Patients' reactions to the death of the psychoanalyst. Int. J. Psychoanal., 59:189-19.
- MEISSNER, W.W. (2002). The problem of self-disclosure in psychoanalysis. Journal of the American Psychoanalytic Association., 50:827-867.
- MELOCHE, M. (1984). The patient and the dying psychiatrist. Canadian Journal of Psychiatry, 29 (4):330-334.

- MORRISON, A.L. (1990). Doing psychotherapy while living with a life-threatening illness. In Illness in the Analyst. ed. by Schwartz, H.J. & Silver, A.-L. Madison, CT: International Universities Press, 1990, pp. 227-250.
- MORRISON, A.L. (1997). Ten years of doing psychotherapy while living with a life-threatening illness: Self-disclosure and other ramifications. Psychoanalytic Dialogue, 7:225-241.
- PLOPA, P., (2014). Being a cancer patient in analysis while continuing to work as an analyst. In Facing Cancer and the Fear of Death: A Psychoanalytic Perspective on Treatment. Ed. Norman Straker, Lanham, Maryland, Jason Aronson, 2014, pp.131-146.
- PIZER, B.(1997). When the analyst is ill: Dimensions of self-disclosure. The Psychoanalytic Quarterly, 66:450-469.
- ROSNER, S. (1986). The seriously ill or dying analyst and the limits of neutrality. Psychoanalytic Psychology, 3:357-371.
- SCHUR, M. (1972). Freud: Living and Dying. New York: International Universities Press.
- SCHWABER, E.A. (1998). "Traveling affectively alone": A personal derailment in analytic listening. Journal of the American Psychoanalytic Association, 46:1045-1065.
- SCHWARTZ, H. (1987). Illness in the doctor: Implications for the psychoanalytic practice. JAPA, 35:657-692.
- SCHWARTZ, H. & SILVER, A.-L., eds. (1990). Illness in the Analyst: Implications for the Treatment Relationship. Madison, CT: Int. Univ. Press.
- SILVER, A-L. (1982). Resuming the work with a life-threatening illness. Contemporary Psychoanalysis, 18:314-326.
- SILVER, A-L. (1990). Resuming the work with a life-threatening illness-and further reflections. Contemp. Psychoanal., 18:314-326.
- SILVER, A-L. (1992). Resuming the work with a life threatening illness – And further reflections. In Illness in the analyst. ed. H.J. Schwartz & Silver, A.-L. Silver. Madison, CT: International Universities Press, 1992, pp. 151-176.
- SILVER, A-L. (2001). Facing mortality while treating patients: A plea for a measure of authenticity. Journal of the American Academy of Psychoanalysis, 29:43-56.
- STRAKER, N., editor (2013). Facing Cancer and the Fear of Death: A Psychoanalytic Perspective on Treatment. Lanham, Maryland, Jason Aronson.

VAN DAM, H. (1987). Countertransference during an analyst's brief illness. JAPA 35:647-655.